For the people

And was I wrong

Was I right

I only depleted pain

Out of spite

And unknowing

My wife

Again and again

Afraid of the beginning

And where it will end

I know ! I know!

I then it will stare

Again and again

The people remain me

I have not come to spare

The dancing people

Will repair

Will repair

And as my last drink nears

I fear

Fear

Fear

Far from the far

I near me my dear

By far

By far

For the dancing people

Do adore

And when the people dance

:Hey please

Be with me in company

And the dancing people lied

For they were purely

Comfort

Free

Oh the happy people

Oh they have their favorite

Oh they have one to spare

Oh they have a vengeance

For the one who could not repair

Oh how they dance to the music

Unbound

By the known disaster

Contemplative

In their own desire

Oh will the dancing people

See who they really are

A fast car

Driving no where

In the far

There was a day before I was sent away

The day before I was sent away

I saw a beautiful woman

She held happily

A bouquet of sunflowers in her grasp

In that moment she had found peace at last

I tatted her journey on my arm

Saving the petals for another day

Hers and the flowers the same

Their grown not in a straight line – and not in vain

The day before I was sent away

I don't want care I want love

And the standing man asks

Can you spare a second

To the air

And the man walking says

"Not a chance"

I turn around and give my second

He leans in

He can not hear me

He tells with glossy eyes

He is waiting for his wife

Continued walking

Im calling my mother

A man stops me walking

:I just saved your life

We all deserve love

But do we deserve care

And what is that difference

Do you care to share?

So what do we do when we realize

What do we do

When we open our eyes

And see that we can not see the core

No matter the visual and auditory conclusions we make – no matter on what scientific or philosophical level –

We will never see the core

But again and again we are met with the limitations of the physical world.

In our minds we are limitless

And deserve we do indeed

When another earth says no

We can not do as we please

We haven't been able to read yes

But have we ever committed to no

Not what is value

But how is value

And the answer is maybe what you don't want to hear

But the answer is ,

Love

For the twitching mangled man

Still likes his eggs with cheese

And likes when you ask for his spare change

With a smile and a please

A clear mission

Who what is my mission?

Help the crying people

With my words

With guidance

Through these vague poems

So that you may feel less alone

For a second while you read

And then another when you remember

And eventually my respect will build

And people will come

And another tear

Aloud to be shed

The path is not clear

But I can not do it the other way anymore

On my way home – to a house not mine

I saw a dead man walking

I had to do a double take

His sandals barley on

No pants

And eyes that screamed

So loud

It hurt to look

And is the woman I smiled to

Wrong for pleading I spare

Am I wrong

That the walking man

Was in more despair

Redemption

But I could never forgive you – so who's the one – I'm sorry – reflection- im sorry – redemption – your intentions so human – my impact so of shattered bliss – was I the one who lied – didn't say sorry – was I the one who – when all the sudden it looked all like lies – believed falsity even existed

Give others a reason to cry

Who is screaming

There is a girl in me who does not scream

She does as they please

They love this girl

The ways the ways

They love this little girl

And how about the one who's screams run

Through the canyons

And the streets

They dis appease

Her please

Again and again and again

She screams

She screams

She screams

:We'll help you!

They say

But just stay put

And wear this ugly gown

Oh and if you think you were right

You weren't

So take off that silly little crown

But all she does

Is scream again

:Won't someone love me til the end

What should I say while I scream

Do I scream what I know is best for me

Or why would I not do anything of the sort

I know I have it in me

But what would that doctors say

And what would the people say

And would would the donkeys say

Who carry my weight

And where would I be all night

If it wasn't in this mighty plight

Fortune seeks me back to home

But I wonder of my mighty thrown

What does it mean for me

To wish I was away

You tell me you love me

But not for today

Relief is easy my dear

When it comes in the form of pain

Is everything we do out of vain

I blame it on the moon

The way you gave up so soon

On my pretty little

Too much life

I blame it on the moon

The way I can't comprehend

To believe absolutely anything

Crumbling again

Was I wrong was I wrong

Was I wrong?

When the answers don't match

Do we do it out of spite

Deeply Disturbing

I'm deeply disturbing
Because I'm able to see what doesn't exist
And it breaks the long stretch routine
We have created to get through each life
Because if you don't glide
You fall
And we have had to do this again and again
And so when someone chips the ice
We fall
Deeply disturbed
